

Farmland Protection

Photo Source: Colorado Department of Transportation

general info

12-0001-11

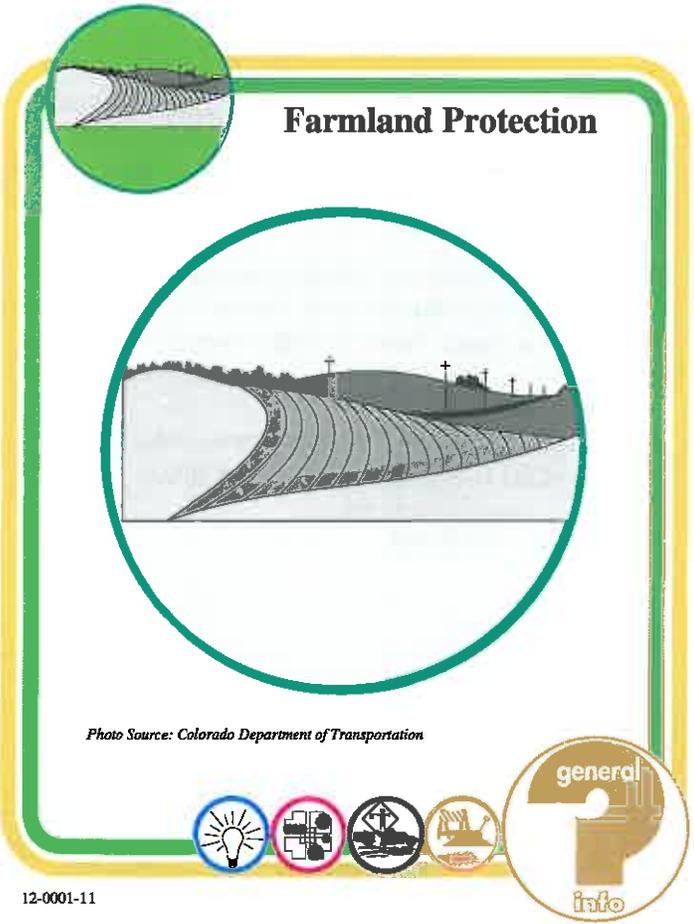

Farmland Protection

Photo Source: Colorado Department of Transportation

general info

12-0001-11

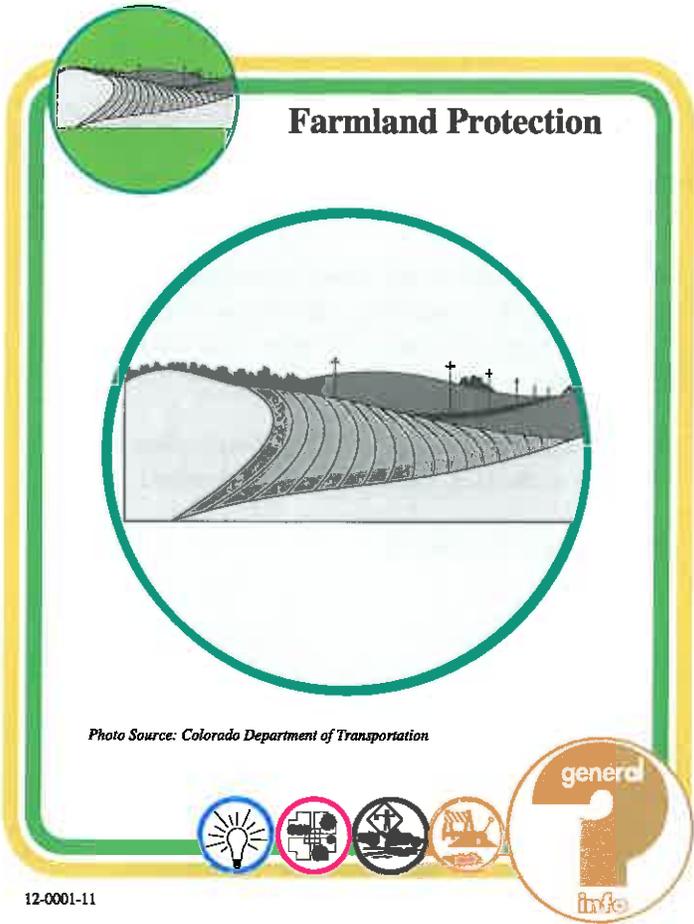

Farmland Protection

Photo Source: Colorado Department of Transportation

general info

12-0001-11

Farmland Protection

Photo Source: Colorado Department of Transportation

general info

12-0001-11

Farmland Protection

The Farmland Protection Policy Act (FPPA), a part of the Agriculture and Food Act of 1981, seeks to minimize the unnecessary and irreversible conversion of farmland to nonagricultural uses by Federal projects.

Of particular concern are “prime” farmlands, which are naturally highly productive, and “unique” farmlands, which are especially suited for high-value food and fiber crops.

Partner agency: Natural Resource Conservation Service (NRCS) of the U.S. Department of Agriculture

Regulations: 7 CFR 658

Farmland Protection

The Farmland Protection Policy Act (FPPA), a part of the Agriculture and Food Act of 1981, seeks to minimize the unnecessary and irreversible conversion of farmland to nonagricultural uses by Federal projects.

Of particular concern are “prime” farmlands, which are naturally highly productive, and “unique” farmlands, which are especially suited for high-value food and fiber crops.

Partner agency: Natural Resource Conservation Service (NRCS) of the U.S. Department of Agriculture

Regulations: 7 CFR 658

Farmland Protection

The Farmland Protection Policy Act (FPPA), a part of the Agriculture and Food Act of 1981, seeks to minimize the unnecessary and irreversible conversion of farmland to nonagricultural uses by Federal projects.

Of particular concern are “prime” farmlands, which are naturally highly productive, and “unique” farmlands, which are especially suited for high-value food and fiber crops.

Partner agency: Natural Resource Conservation Service (NRCS) of the U.S. Department of Agriculture

Regulations: 7 CFR 658

Farmland Protection

The Farmland Protection Policy Act (FPPA), a part of the Agriculture and Food Act of 1981, seeks to minimize the unnecessary and irreversible conversion of farmland to nonagricultural uses by Federal projects.

Of particular concern are “prime” farmlands, which are naturally highly productive, and “unique” farmlands, which are especially suited for high-value food and fiber crops.

Partner agency: Natural Resource Conservation Service (NRCS) of the U.S. Department of Agriculture

Regulations: 7 CFR 658

