

Native American Consultation

Photo Source: The White House

07-0010-11

Native American Consultation

Photo Source: The White House

07-0010-11

Native American Consultation

Photo Source: The White House

07-0010-11

Native American Consultation

Photo Source: The White House

07-0010-11

Native American Consultation

The National Historic Preservation Act mandates that federal agencies must involve interested Native American tribes in the planning process for federal undertakings, such as a transportation project.

It is important to recognize that historic properties of religious and cultural significance to one or more tribes may be located on ancestral, aboriginal, or ceded lands beyond modern reservation boundaries.

By describing the proposed undertaking and the nature of known cultural sites, and consulting with the interested Native American community, FHWA and CDOT strive to effectively protect areas important to American Indian people.

Regulations: 36 CFR 800.2(c)(2)(ii)

Native American Consultation

The National Historic Preservation Act mandates that federal agencies must involve interested Native American tribes in the planning process for federal undertakings, such as a transportation project.

It is important to recognize that historic properties of religious and cultural significance to one or more tribes may be located on ancestral, aboriginal, or ceded lands beyond modern reservation boundaries.

By describing the proposed undertaking and the nature of known cultural sites, and consulting with the interested Native American community, FHWA and CDOT strive to effectively protect areas important to American Indian people.

Regulations: 36 CFR 800.2(c)(2)(ii)

Native American Consultation

The National Historic Preservation Act mandates that federal agencies must involve interested Native American tribes in the planning process for federal undertakings, such as a transportation project.

It is important to recognize that historic properties of religious and cultural significance to one or more tribes may be located on ancestral, aboriginal, or ceded lands beyond modern reservation boundaries.

By describing the proposed undertaking and the nature of known cultural sites, and consulting with the interested Native American community, FHWA and CDOT strive to effectively protect areas important to American Indian people.

Regulations: 36 CFR 800.2(c)(2)(ii)

Native American Consultation

The National Historic Preservation Act mandates that federal agencies must involve interested Native American tribes in the planning process for federal undertakings, such as a transportation project.

It is important to recognize that historic properties of religious and cultural significance to one or more tribes may be located on ancestral, aboriginal, or ceded lands beyond modern reservation boundaries.

By describing the proposed undertaking and the nature of known cultural sites, and consulting with the interested Native American community, FHWA and CDOT strive to effectively protect areas important to American Indian people.

Regulations: 36 CFR 800.2(c)(2)(ii)

